

The U.S. Census Bureau recently released two new data tools to help you explore your community.

My Community Explorer combines select demographic, business, and resilience data to help you identify potentially underserved areas of your state, county, and community and inform data-based solutions.

The Digital Equity Act Population Viewer helps you understand who has internet access, devices, and digital skills – and who doesn't. This interactive map shows broadband availability and use alongside demographics in every state.

The Census Bureau provides data and resources at no cost that policymakers and the public can use to advance equity. This includes demographic data, diversity measurement, data education and more.
